

Emergency Response for Dangerous Goods

Thursday 10th September

Overview

Effective emergency response for dangerous good incidents is critical if loss of life and assets as well as community disruption and environmental damage are to be minimised. This session focuses on the concept of a nationally recognised training regime that could improve the capability of industry to respond to incidents and also allow incident controllers to recognised personnel with appropriate competencies at accident scenes.

Who should attend

Manufacturers, warehousemen and transporters of dangerous goods, fire and emergency services, competent authorities, regulators, consultants, equipment manufacturers, OH&S managers, fleet managers, compliance managers
